DINOLFO NAMES DAVID MOORE AS DIRECTOR OF THE OFFICE OF PUBLIC INTEGRITY

Moore Selected Based on Extensive Law Enforcement Experience and Vast Institutional Knowledge

Monroe County Executive Cheryl Dinolfo today announced her appointment of David Moore as Director of the Office of Public Integrity. Moore is the first to hold the position after the office was created by Dinolfo earlier this year.

“With a lifetime of experience in law enforcement, as well as the professional and personal qualities essential to do the job, I am proud to entrust this role to David Moore,” said Dinolfo. “David is the perfect candidate to head this important office and I look forward to him establishing the Office of Public Integrity with full autonomy and independence.”

Dinolfo created the Office of Public Integrity as one of her first acts in office, fulfilling a key campaign promise. After receiving feedback from members of the public and the County Legislature, the legislation was amended to expand the scope of the office and strengthen the independence of its leadership. The legislation passed with overwhelming bipartisan support.

“Public service is an honor and we should never forget that our first priority is to uphold the interests of the taxpayers. The Office of Public Integrity will be a watchdog agency, and I am pleased to bring my law enforcement experience with me to the position,” said Moore. “I am now seeking certification to become an Inspector General and will use this expertise and knowledge in my new focus in the Office of Public Integrity, ensuring the highest standard of ethics and transparency are practiced in Monroe County.”

Moore has over 35 years in law enforcement experience. He has served as the Chief of Police in three different cities, including Rochester from 2006 to 2010 under former Mayor Bob Duffy. From 2010 to 2011, he served as the Director of the Office of Public Integrity for the City of Rochester. Moore currently serves as the Director of Public Safety for Monroe County. In this role, he has been instrumental in closing down LDCs – another key campaign promise of Dinolfo’s.
